$650,000. The Secretary of the Treasury has issued the following additional circular in relation to the one hundre

ing additiona circular in relation to the one hundred dollar compound increst notes:—

The instructions contained in the circular of the department, dated Spiember 16, relative to the counterfeit one hundred dollar compound interest notes, instructing Assistant Treasurers and designated depositation not to pay out an hundred dollar compound interest notes, nor other comminations of compound interest notes bearing date May 15, 1865, or prior to that time, were intended to apply to notes held by such Assistant Treasurers and descriptions of government funds, and were not designed to direct the action of banks or individuals relative to such compound interest notes held on their own account.

viduals relative to such compound interest notes held on choir own account.

The difficulty and expense of at once withdrawing from circulation, or exchanging for other notes, all compound is leave in the character described, now in circulation, make the attempt madvisable. The department will, however, withdraw from circulation the one hundred deliar desipound interest notes as fast as they may be received as the ordinary course of business, and reisauc some of the same impression; and it is hoped that, by doe care and caution, after the immediate exposure of the disgreens character of the counterfelts, any considerable inculation of them may be prevented. Assistant Treasurers and designated depositaries will therefore forwar to the Treasurer of the United States such compounds irerest notes as are of the denomination of one hundred collars, and all compound interest notes which are dated tay 15, 1855, or prior thoreto, the same being held as fasts of the government, and not otherwise.

Our Steam Coasting Trade.

Our Steam Coasting Trade.

THE NEW PROPELLER HUNTER—DESCRIPTION OF THE VESSEL.

Our coasting trade between the Northern and Southern States is gradually reviving, and as a general thing the vessels that are now entering that special branch of commerce are nearly all new, and have been built expressly for navigating the shallow waters of the Southern States. New lines of packets are being started daily; new companies are being organized, and old ones re-established, and the prospects indicate that in a very short time we will have more steamers engaged in the coasting trade than were employed in the same service previous to the outbreak of the rebellion. Mesers. Huntington & Raymond, of Mystic, Connecticut, have lately started a new line of propellers which are intended to run between here and Savannah, and yesterday a number of ladies and gentlemen availed themselves of the invitation of Mr. Jours, the New York agent, and visited the steam propeller Hunter, the pioneer vessel of the new line.

the invitation of Mr. Jores, the New York agent, and visited the steam propeller Hunter, the pioneer vessel of the new line.

The propeller Hunter was built at Mystic, Conn., and is principally composed of white oak and locust. She is planked outside and in with white oak, and is in every respect a well finshed vessel. She has two decka; le one hundred and forty-six feet long, twenty-seven and a half feet beam, and seventeen feet depth of held. The cabin is nicely finished and handsomely furnished, and is capable of accommodating forty passengers. She is a beautiful model, with a sharp bow and round sterni, and is schooner rigged. The vessel is provided with every necessary contrivance, and the greatest procaution is taken to guard against fire. She is provided with one low pressure boiler, with a thirty-six inch cylinder, with two and a half feet stroke, and carries forty pounds of steam to the square inch. There are two supply pipes, and a gauge pipe in front of the boiler, together with two feed pumps, three-iach plunge, with twelve inches stroke, worked by the main engine.

The propeller flunter is commanded by Captain Martin L. Rogers, and will sail for Savannah on Thursday next. Her consort, the steamer Leon, will be ready for sea in two or three weeks.

The Lien Brewery Murder.

To the Editor of the herald.

On the 19th instant there was a picnic at the Lion Brewery Hotel. Several young men remained after the picnic until about ten o'clock at night, at which time they were ordered to leave by the bartenders. They did not leave as soon as required, and were assailed by the bartenders and waiters with knives, bottles and chairs, and with the aid of two policement they were forced outside, many receiving shocking cuts and bruises before they could gain the door. About five minutes afterwards they heard noises inside, and as William and Daniel Claffy were both missing the excited parties forced open the door and found baniel dead about five or six feet from the policemen, who were inside. William Claffy was under a table at the other end of the room, with several cuts on the head, and had probably been struck with a lager beer glass. There were in the barroom at the time of the murder several bartenders and waiters, and two policemen. The latter deny all knowledge of the murder, yet Duniel Claffy was found dead only five feet from the door. It was only about five minutes from the time he was reen alive until he was found dead. He received several stabs, one in particular, through the heart, and also a number of outs on the head. The policemen did not agrees any man who was in the bar at the time of the murder, as they were requested to do by James Claffy and others. But they did arrest all who were outside

That $7,000 was loaned by Mrs. Calderon to son other than the petitioner, and that therefore Calderon) had no claim on the drafts of the the owner of these two sceeptances.

The test mony on the subject is very contradictory and irreconclable. There is, however, no testimony that the drafts psyuble in the name of Mary Shapson were not purchased by the petitioner, Anne Lorking, in Cuba, and this is the point to which the evidence should have been directed if the title of Anne Lorking to all the drafts was to be successfully impeached. This fact could have been assily and clearly established if the respondent's version was the correct one.

king's endors ment should have been made or forged upon them, unless upon the theory that she had been the owner.

The tentimeny relative to the existence of another Mary simpsen, and to her having any interest in any of these stasts, in atterly unsatisfactory and unrelable.

Eaving come to this condumon, I am also led to discredit that him that $7,000 was advanced to Anne Lorking, as to any one for her, on those drafts or any of them. Excepting Mr. King, one of the witness as whe testified to such transaction were able to give the details or character of it, although they testified to seeing some monby counted; and even Mr. Porter, who was called in expressly, as well as Donninguez and Romero, who were accidently there, did not prove satisfactorily first the transaction was a loan, nor to whom, or by whom, or on what society, or for what period, or on what terms. No note or due bill or other evidence of the transaction was taken.

It is not necessary to discredit the statements of Mr. Calderon, since sho was not present, but gave Mr. King the money at her boarding house. When became of it see count not tell, except from hearsay.

In this view of the whole case I do not and the testifony in support of the alleged advance so satisfactory. It is justify the retention of the drafts in givenion should be delivered up by Mr. King, the respondent of the sum of — dollars for his services.

On the antistincement of the decision by Judge Barnard the speciators expressed their satisfaction in a load cheer, clapping of hands and stamping of feet, which leasted for nearly a minute. The cry for order on the part of the officers of the court was entirely unheeded until the andience gave full vent few their feelings. The petitioner received the warm congrutulations of her friends, and immediately left the court zoom, accompanied by Mr. Marquette. Thus ends this famous and interesting litigation.

SETT. 25.—Helen Somers vs. John Somers.—This was a motion on the part of the plaints for allowance of alimony. The petition set forth that the defendant, who had married the plaintiff a short time ago, was poshad married the plaintiff a short time ago, was pos-seased of some twenty thousand dollars worth of real estate, situated in Richmond county; that he had ob-tained possession of the plaintiff's property and con-verted it to his own use; and, lastiff, that the defendant had been guilty of cruel and inhuman treatment to his wife, for which reason she was obliged to live separate and spart from him. The petition asked for an allow-since of twenty dollars per week. The case was post-poned, on application of the defendant's counsel, until next detober. The defendant is said to be a lager beer manufacturer on Staten Island.
